It is ludicrous for the government to seek to ban a service for which American citizens actively seek and pay for. That an innovation such as Satellite Radio should be interfered with by government agencies influenced by powerful lobbies for no reason other than money is offensive.

Satellite Radio instantly provides me with useful services and information virtually anywhere, where conventional radio (particularly AM radio) falls well short of expectations and need. AM and FM radio stations could actively seek to improve their products and methodologies to compete with satellite radio, but instead employ a powerful lobby (that does NOT represent the American people) such as the NAB to squash competition legislatively. This move is counter to the very basic tenets of the American dream.

I am personally outraged that such a bill would be presented to our legislature at the very highest levels.
